MOVIE PREVIEW

"Now a preview of our coming attraction."

Voice over (with loud dramatic music in the background)

The year. 1998-1999. The millennium is just around the corner, but now you've got bigger fish to fry. Your 1998 taxes are a disaster. You're facing a massive tax bill. You need help preparing your 1998 personal tax return. But your problems don't stop there. You're also looking for help planning for the future. You know you might be too late for 1998, but now is the time to start planning for 1999.

"Gone With The Tax" is sure to be the blockbuster hit of 1998-1999. Riveting drama, high intensity and an all star cast are sure to make "Gone With The Tax", the most talked about film in 1999. (The screen goes blank just prior to the preview of a scene from the film. The scene opens up outside a major building as the camera pans a view from ground level up to the 100th floor and takes us inside the reception area, down the hallway and into a corner office, the size of a palatial suite at a major Las Vegas hotel. The effect of the camera work is suspenseful and dramatic. The camera sweeps the room providing a glimpse of furniture that is both substantial and ornate. The camera now focuses on two actors. One actor is nattily attired in a very expensive suit, Rolex watch, and Gucci shoes. The whole nine yards. This is the client. The other actor is also dressed in a suit, but his suit is a little tattered and his attire is somewhat unkept. He is slightly balding and is wearing glasses that are perched towards the end of his nose. He is your stereotypical accountant. The senior partner of the accounting firm of Black White and Tibbs, Mr. Samuel Houston Tibbs.) (It's about time they did a movie about accountants).

CLIENT: My name is Bond, James Bond. (any James Bond movie)

ACCOUNTANT: They call me Mr. Tibbs. (The Heat of the Night)

CLIENT: Look Tibbs, I'm paying a lot of tax and if I were a rich man (Fiddler on the Roof) that wouldn't be a problem. But like any taxpayer, I'm looking to keep my taxes to a minimum. I understand that you have some excellent personal tax planning tips that will put some tax dollars back in my pocket. I'm tired of paying those big tax dollars to the government. Show me the money. Show me the money. Show me the money. (Jerry Maguire)

ACCOUNTANT: Alllll righty then. (Ace Ventura). So I want you to get up now. I want you to get out of your chair and go to the window right now. I want you to go to the window, open it and stick you head out and yell. You've got to say. I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take this anymore. I'm a human being, goddamit. (Network). Because as you know, tax is like a box of chocolates. You never know what you're gonna get. (Forrest Gump).

Here at Black White and Tibbs, our philosophy is all for one and one for all. (The Three Musketeers). We work hard as a team to develop a plethora of tax strategies that help our clients keep the tax boys at bay. I'm their worst nightmare. (Rambo).

CLIENT: Is it safe? Is it safe? (Marathon Man).

ACCOUNTANT: All of our tax planning is designed to stand the test of time. We're extra careful when we design our strategies because we know if you build it, he will come. (Field of Dreams). Therefore, we take extra care to ensure our RRSF, capital gains exemption and income splitting ideas work. You know the government. They're not going to catch us. We're on a mission from God. (The Blues Brothers).

CLIENT: Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious (Mary Poppins). When I'm with you, I feel like I'm the king of the world. (Titanic). I love the smell of a tax refund in the morning. It's the smell of victory. (Apocalypse Now)

ACCOUNTANT: Hold on, don't get too hasty. What we've got here is a failure to communicate. (Cool Hand Luke). Don't count that refund yet. Tax planning is a tricky game. You want answers. You want answers. You can't handle the truth. (A Few Good Men). It's important that you understand that tax planning is not a once a year gig. As they say, stupid is as stupid does (Forrest Gump). It's important that you visit me more than once a year. You can't just visit me on December 31 and expect that I'm going to solve all your problems. You can't come to me and say Houston, we have a problem. (Apollo 13) and always expect me to solve it. We've got to work together as a team; all year round.

CLIENT: Whooo-haah (Scent of a Woman). Geez, I'm sorry.

ACCOUNTANT: Tax means never having to say you're sorry. (Love Story). Look, I'm gonna make you an offer you can't refuse. (The Godfather). Here at Black White and Tibbs, we focus our personal tax planning tips on two principal objectives. The first objective is simply the reduction of taxes. I've always been lucky when it comes to killin' taxes. (Unforgiven). Sometimes nothing is a very cool hand. (Cool Hand Luke) but it's unlikely that your taxes can be completely eliminated. Our second and equally important objective involves trying to defer taxes to future years. You've got to pick a pocket or two boys, you've got to pick a pocket or two. (Oliver). Deferring taxes helps you keep some spare change in your pocket.

So go ahead, make my day. (Dirty Harry). In the rest of our meeting, I'll be giving you a reel of various tax tips and strategies to help increase your cash flow position. While we're proud of our tips approach to tax planning, it shouldn't replace our regular visits to discuss your tax needs. Feel free to use our tips to save money from those government guys and may the force be with you (Star Wars).

CLIENT: Party time, excellent (Waynes World). Who are those guys (Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid), and why are they always trying to squeeze us for more tax dollars. Anyway, it's nice to see that you've got my best interests at heart by designing your tax saving tips strategies. Where do you get all these wonderful toys (Batman). Anyhow, this has been a wonderful meeting but I do wish we could chat longer, but I'm having an old friend for dinner (Silence of the Lambs). So Hasta Lavista Baby (Terminator).

ACCOUNTANT: Don't forget Bond that while our "Tax Tips" are designed primarily for the 1999 season, there are some tips that may be helpful for 1998. We have given you a wide array of ideas so that you'll come back and say Please sir, I want some more. (Oliver). Despite the fact we spent countless hours developing our tips manual, it's not designed to replace the advice and counsel of a good sound professional. Don't go it alone with just our tips manual. If you do and things don't work out; frankly my dear, I don't give a damn (Gone with the Wind). So, stick with me and everything will work out fine or my name's not Samuel Houston Tibbs.

CLIENT: Play it again, Sam. (Casablanca)

Movie Critics

From its opening scene in the accountants office to the closing credits, "Gone With The Tax" is a film that is Top Gun. The film is filled with precious moments that will even please those on Wall Street and City Slickers as well.

You'll need a Braveheart and perhaps 48 Hours to read through the gamut of tax tips interspersed throughout this epic drama. But with this film, the gang from GCSE have shown they are in A League Of Their Own. Bringing their tax ideas to the Big screen is Risky Business. This was no Shot in the Dark. The writers of this film clearly spent many nights Home Alone...In the Heat of the Night, coming up with the many splendid moments that even Ordinary People can enjoy.

There were times during the film that we felt a Big Chill go down our spine and it felt like we were catching a Saturday Night Fever. The RRSP scenes made us particularly Moonstruck. There is no doubt that the producers had A Few Good Men working on this film that had the Basic Instinct to Network their resources and produce a drama that clearly has The Right Stuff. The writers worked with Speed, Deliverance, and Total Recall through the Dog Day Afternoon to give us a picture that has All That Jazz.

Some of the tax planning for self-employed individuals will bring us Back to the Future. The income splitting scenes are A Field of Dreams. RRSP tips. They are the Untouchables.

Heaven Can Wait. It's a Great Escape. A Lethal Weapon.

The Verdict is in. "Gone With The Tax" is a Titanic effort that will help you turn The Color of Money.
